

David Camfield is a professor of Labour Studies Program and Sociology at the University of Manitoba. His Areas of specialization include Social Theory, Theory and Practice of Workers' Movements, Unions in Canada, Working Classes as Historical Formations, Social Movements and Work in Capitalist Societies. His publications include La crise du syndicalisme au Canada et au Québec: Réinventer le mouvement ouvrier and Canadian Labour in Crisis: Reinventing the Workers' Movement.