

Jourdy Victoria James Heredia is a Licentiate in Foreign Trade Economy. She Graduation of the Havana University in 1985 and holds an MSc in International Economy, Havana University, 2003. She is a Senior Researcher in World Economic Studies Center in Cuba. She received PhDs in Economics at the Havana University, Cuba, in 2013, and Santiago de Compostela University, Spain, in 2014. She currently serves as a professor at Havana University, a Researcher at the World Economics Research Center (CIEM), Havana, and as the Deputy Director General of World Economics Research Center (CIEM), Havana, Cuba. She has published widely on economic and social situation and the current challenges of European integration. She speaks Spanish, English and Russian.