

Raza Naeem is an Arabic-speaking Pakistani social scientist, literary critic and translator currently based in Lahore. He has been trained in Political Economy from the University of Leeds in the UK and in Middle Eastern History and Anthropology from the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville, USA. He has travelled in and reported from Egypt, Yemen and Turkey over the years, and is presently working on two books, namely, on a political and cultural history of post-Arab Spring Yemen; and a book on the contradictions of bourgeois democracy in Pakistan. He has previously held a prestigious 2013-14 British Council and Charles Wallace Trust Fellowship at the University of Bradford in the UK. His research on Yemen was also shortlisted for the prestigious invited Gulf Research Meeting in August 2016 on 'Yemen and the GCC: Future Relations' at the Gulf Research Centre at the University of Cambridge in the UK.
