

Antulio Rosales is a PhD candidate in Global Governance from the University of Waterloo and the Balsillie School of International Affairs. His research interests focus on the political economy of development in South America and especially on the politics of foreign investment in the extractive industries of Venezuela and Ecuador. His recent publications include articles in the Canadian Journal of Development Studies, Third World Quarterly, The Extractive Industries and Society, among others. His forthcoming co-authored publications on the history of Latin American political economy thought will appear in International Studies Quarterly and International Studies Review.